Táinos Wallcovering TWP002 Antilles

Táinos is a unique design based on zemis (stone idols) made by the indigenous people of the Caribbean and Florida. Descended from Arawak Indian settlers, the flourishing Taíno culture of art, music and magical rituals was similar to Mayan civilisation in the 11th century. The zemis themselves are considered among the best examples of New World sculpture, depicting supernatural deities and spirits in polished porous stone.

Illustrated using ink and traditional Chinese calligraphy paint brushes, each design has been painstakingly hand painted, then digitally printed on the finest paper-weave wallcovering. Available in your choice of bright or neutral colours, Táinos is a true treasure of the ancient world.
